

Female Relationship Capacity Report

Your Report Code: 13945

Angelina Jolie (06/04/1975 09:09:00 Los Angeles Community Hospital)

"The Opening Rose at the left signifies that you are ready for love and a good relationship; but that a bit of self-nourishment and emotional growth will go a long way to have the great, way above average relationship for which every heart hopes."

"Before Compatibility there is Capacity..."

Everyone who follows astrology knows that there is such a magnificent thing as Astrological Relationship Compatibility - the ability to see from the chart if this person is the One, if this person will fit me perfectly. Compatibility is, however, really the second step towards using astrology to find the ideal mate. The first step is determining our Capacity to have a healthy relationship. Capacity is the degree to which a relationship can be fulfilling and the degree to which we are emotionally and behaviorally suited to be a romantic partner for someone. Simply speaking, compatibility is just the degree to which we can take advantage of our Capacity. A person with a great Capacity for relationship can have a pretty darn good relationship even with a somewhat incompatible person, while a person with an impossibly low Capacity for relationship will usually have an awful relationship even with a compatible person - at least until they improve their Capacity. When it comes down to it, it is Capacity that is most important for a fulfilling relationship - when two capable people come together; most of the work is already done. Understanding our Capacity is also the first step in learning to become more capable in a relationship. Capacity is not a limiting factor; it is the beginning of understanding ourselves so that we can make the progress we need in order to have a wonderful and fulfilling relationship.

Ancient Vedic astrological texts deal very extensively with determining the Capacity of a woman to have a good relationship and the ability of a man to be "worth his salt" - without which he can never be a good partner or husband to anyone. The following report is based on these ancient principles which are timeless and so perfect for every age, but most needed at a time such as now when the divorce rate is high, loneliness is rampant and failing family structures are putting pressures on children that they should never have to endure.

Please note that this report is gender dependent, so make sure that you order the male report for a male and the female report for a female.

Certain planets make it easy to feel good and to be happy in a relationship, while other planets make that most desired thing very difficult to manage. Usually we have some of these easy planets and some of these difficult planets influencing us, so in some ways we are happy when in love, and in other ways we feel unable to be open to the full love that we want. In rare cases a person will have only the difficult planets influencing them and then it can just be so difficult to give a guy, even Mr. Right, an honest chance. If you are one of the lucky women who have only the easy planets influencing you, then you are probably not reading this! For the rest of us, whether you have just one difficult planet or all difficult planets, the secret to success is to be open to the man who wants to try to love and cherish you, be patient with yourself and above all, trust yourself to be able to handle whatever happens. Learn what you need to learn to make you the master of what happens to you in the realm of love.

Now here's the bad news: There are more of those difficult planets than there are of those easy planets. That's right, we're all playing against a stacked deck, but that's life and love. So don't get discouraged if you see more difficult planets influencing your makeup than easy planets. Love breeds forgiveness and understanding and Mr. Right will love you all the more because of your hardships and be all the more proud of you for the goodness that you maintain even in the face of this very challenging world we live in.

First let's look at your relationship strengths, which are created by those easy planets that I referred to. These are what are going to make Mr. Right want to fight for you and keep you, regardless of how some of those difficult planets may interfere, because these are what are going to make you a day in and day out joy to be with.

"What is opening your heart to love..."

To have a great relationship, the most important thing is that your heart is open to love, happiness and friendship. If your heart is open to these things, a man will want you, because when it comes right down to it, men need happiness, friendship and love as much as you do. So let's see what's helping you with that...

Here are the planets that are helping your heart to be open to love:

♀ Venus, the planet of peace, love and harmony, is influencing your heart to a full measure - this is ideal! Venus is such a helpful planet to have in this perfect position. To start with, Venus will help you listen to your feelings so you can make good decisions about what is worthwhile for you to do or not do. By listening to your feelings in this way, you'll be able to know when something is right for you or not. When something feels good to you, your Venus will help you accept and have that thing in your life. When a man treats you well, you will recognize the fact that he really cares about you and wants you in his life and so be able to make the most of your relationships. On the other hand, if a man treats you badly or even indifferently, you'll know that you're better off without him, in which case Venus will give you the emotional health to move on to better places and opportunities.

Your Venus will not only help you find love, it will also make you loveable, and so you can bet that your man will be very glad that you are in his life. Venus is giving you a loving and romantic heart that your man just won't be able to live without once he experiences it. Even during times of conflict or when your man does something he shouldn't, Venus will help you manage your feelings when you're hurt so that you can approach the problem with feelings of love and harmony.

♃ Jupiter, the planet of happiness and wisdom, is influencing your heart to a healthy degree. A happy and contented heart goes a long way towards making a relationship work. Your capacity to be happy and forgiving will go a long way towards making any relationship productive. Like attracts like and so Jupiter is sure to attract a wonderful man into your life. If that hasn't happened yet, you may have some delays in your horoscope that are making you wait for your best relationship. Until that time, Jupiter will help you be happy anyway, so rest assured that it's just a matter of time before your happy heart attracts Mr. Right.

Jupiter will also give you an understanding heart that gives you an innate ability to be happy with people, such an important thing when it comes to love. Understanding really is an important foundation to true love and you can bet that your man will appreciate you for that. The innate wisdom that Jupiter gives when it influences the heart will make you invaluable not only to yourself, but also to your man.

☿ Mercury, the planet of friendship and communication, is influencing your heart to only a small degree, so while you have some friendliness warming your heart, it's not so much that other planets cannot drown it out, especially during the difficult times in your relationship. You can use your Mercury to increase and maintain friendship if you want to - you just have to give Mercury the chance, so take the time to write or think your way through your emotions until you understand what you are really feeling. Then go talk with your man and make him your best friend.

 The Moon, the divinity of feminine wisdom and receptivity, is influencing your heart to a healthy degree. A strong Moon influence like this is very helpful in a relationship as it makes you more receptive to the good things that life - or a man - may be about giving you. The Moon is feminine and its influence will help you be a wonderful woman in a relationship - a woman who has the capacity to respect and love a man for what he willingly does for her. The Moon also helps you be in touch with your true feelings, the most important thing for navigating the world of love. While it's always possible that you have some tough planets in your chart as well, beyond any of that, the Moon is making you a woman who deserves to be loved and cherished. So don't settle for less than that, just take your time to work out any hard things that may be getting in the way.

"What is making you personable..."

The most important thing for you to have a good relationship is an open heart. Following that, however, is your general personality. Are you personable and easy to approach and get along with, or do you hide the real you or pretend to be stronger than you really feel? Do you have a wildness or a toughness that can make others a bit threatened by your strength, or are you gentle in nature? All these types of things can make it easier or more difficult for a man to love and cherish you. Here are the planets making you personable, approachable, and easy to get to know and get along with.

 Venus, the planet of peace, love and charm, is influencing your personality to a full measure - this is Ideal! Venus in such a perfect position will make you graceful, charming, polite and desirable. All in all, your Venus will help a man to really want to treat you right and special. If you ever wonder why men find you attractive, your Venus is probably the reason. Venus may or may not make you physically attractive in this position, but it will always make your manner and graciousness attractive.

 Jupiter, the planet of happiness, creativity and wisdom, is influencing your personality to a full measure - this is ideal! This is the perfect position for Jupiter. Your optimistic, creative and insightful nature will make you a valuable treasure to the man in your life. Not only will these things help you help your man to have a better life, more importantly, they will help you find greater happiness in your relationship.

 Mercury, the planet of friendship and communication, is influencing your personality to only a small degree, so while you do have some Mercury influence, it can easily be drowned out by other planets, especially during those more difficult times in a relationship. Remember that friendship, fairness and taking the time to communicate these things go a long way toward making a relationship fulfilling, so use that ability which you do have, even though it isn't your strongest.

 The Moon, the divinity of femininity, adaptability and receptivity, is influencing your personality to an average degree. The Moon in this position can make you more receptive to the good things that life - or a man - may be giving you. It can also make you more adaptable, something relationships always require, while also gracing you with the femininity that a man who wants to love and cherish a woman is looking for. Since the Moon is not strong in this position, though strong enough, make sure to remember the importance of your femininity, adaptability and receptivity in making a relationship work out for the best.

Now that you know what a man sees in you, not your mere physical attractiveness, but the inner qualities that make him really need you, let's take a look at what may be making his job of loving and cherishing you challenging at times. These are the things that the difficult planets are bringing out and that you want to work on if you really are serious about improving your love life. That's the good news - if you want to improve your love life, you only have to work on yourself and your love life will improve. This works a lot better than trying to "fix" a man (men just aren't trainable that way - you may have noticed!) but if you improve yourself, the man changes too, or if not, he disappears (good riddance) and Mr. Right steps right on in. So take full responsibility for your love life, work on yourself and demand by your silent self-improvement that the man rises to meet you and say "no" to anything that does not feel good, healthy or validating to you.

"What is closing your heart to love..."

Now that you know about the planets that are making you both loveable and loving, let's take a look at the planets that can get in the way of all that love. But first, how and why do planets get in the way in the first place? The answer: Because life is hard, there's no doubt about that, and as a result of having suffered hardships and difficulties, it's an instinctive thing to protect your heart from future pain by closing and defending it. It's a good thing to do in many cases, but it can become so habitual that you may find yourself closing your heart to something that would actually feel good. Or defending yourself from someone who means no harm - and that's not what you want to do! So let's take a look at the protectors and defenders of your heart so that you can come to understand them and not let them keep you from what you really want - Love.

Here are the planets that are closing your heart to love:

 Fear-based Saturn is influencing your heart to a full measure, which explains the emotional hardships you have experienced in your life. As a result of this Saturn influence and the emotional hardships that it represents, Saturn will have a difficult time letting your heart be fully open to love. Simply put, it will be scary for Saturn to let go and go with the flow of love, and that includes the flow of love in your heart. Instead, Saturn will try to play it safe. The way that Saturn tries to play it safe is to control the flow of love in a relationship, which means to control pretty much everything in a relationship, including the man - and that just doesn't work. It doesn't work for the man, and it doesn't work for you, either. It won't work for the man because he needs to feel like he is doing the right thing to make you happy. If he can feel that way, he will feel loved and respected. But when Saturn tries to control the flow of love and the relationship itself, the man feels controlled and burdened and never gets the chance to do the right thing for you of his own accord. It doesn't work for you, either, because for you to actually feel loved, the man has to treat you right and do right by you of his own accord, not because your Saturn made him do it. When your Saturn makes him do it, he may do it, but it just won't give that feeling of love and security that you really need.

So how are you to deal with your Saturn and the consequences he is having on your love life? You'll need to learn how to do nothing! Doing nothing should be easy—but it isn't. Doing nothing means you learn how to be with yourself and take care of yourself while you wait for the man in your life to figure things out and do the right thing for you. To be able to do that, to have that patience, you have to do three things:

The first thing you have to do is realize that you are worth loving, even if you have suffered abuse and negligence in your past. Why are you worth loving? It's simple, you're a woman, right? So you are worth loving. There is a reason that God created Eve after Adam, so that Adam would have something worth loving. End of story. So make sure you get the fact that you are worth loving into the deepest recesses of your brain and heart, or else your Saturn is going to mess up your love life.

The second thing you have to do is take your time bonding to your man. How fast can you bond to him? As fast as he bonds to you, but no faster! If you get bonded to him faster than he bonds to you, then you will need more from him than he needs from you and then your Saturn will be left feeling very worried and frightened and will then start trying to control things - and in so doing, scare the man away from a serious commitment. The most important thing to not bond to him faster than he bonds to you is to not have sex with him until he is totally committed to you in actions and words, and that he has a plan for you in his future, a plan that he has told you about. At that point he is bonded to you, deeply, so you can get bonded to him deeply through sex. Unfortunately, men just do not bond as deeply through sex as women, so don't think that having sex with him is going to seal any deal at all. You have to make him invest more than six inches of his life in you before he will be bonded to you, when his future is invested in you, then he is bonded to you. So make him realize that he cannot live with you BEFORE you have sex with him and don't think that just because he had sex with you he will not be able to live without you.

Unfortunately, the influence of Saturn causes you to believe that you have to do things that are not right for you in order to be accepted, wanted and loved, which means that Saturn in this position can easily make it seem like you have to have sex with the man that's courting you or else he won't accept, want or love you. The opposite is, in fact, true. The longer you don't have sex with him the more he will want you, love you and accept you - and if he does not do that, well then, he is just there for sex and he will leave eventually and you will be better off with him leaving before you have sex with him. So use Saturn not to distance you from what you know will work for you, but to distance you from the wrong type of man by not having sex with the man until he really is committed to you. Keep in mind that it's the man's job to try to have sex with you. Good, let him try - see how much he wants you! There is nothing wrong with him trying, but don't give in to that shared happiness until he has demonstrated commitment to you in both actions and words.

The final thing you have to do to keep your Saturn from getting in the way of your love life is to learn how to take care of yourself emotionally. When you're feeling empty or depressed, learn to work out of that feeling in a positive way, not through needing a man, excessive behaviors (shopping, working, eating chocolate, etc.). Instead, go out and exercise, and let your body's movement and exertion stimulate those happiness producing chemicals in your brain. Or meditate, chant, make art, music, learn something new - all these things produce those happy chemicals and when you're happier, you're more desirable to your man. So take care of your own happiness first and watch how your relationship and your man reflect that as your love life improves.

"What is making you hide the real you or causing you to act stronger than you really feel.."

Some planets are soft and gentle while others are tough and hard. Soft and gentle planets help us to travel the enjoyable paths in life, such as relationships and friendships, while the tough and hard planets force us to deal with the many hardships found along the way. Ironically, the soft and gentle planets make it easier for us to get along with people in general, but when things go wrong and it gets hard, it is some of the tough planets that help us weather and overcome the problems. So while the gentle planets that have already been looked at in your horoscope do make you more personable and easier to get along with in general, some of the tough planets that make you a little harder to get to know and harder for others to get along with can actually help you survive the hard times of love.

 Saturn's position in your horoscope - right in your ascendant (also known as your rising sign) - shows that you have a strong need to prove yourself to yourself, even to prove to yourself that you are worthy of love. In trying to prove yourself, you may actually end up pushing away the very man whose love you want. In trying to "be something" or "do something" well, you may actually find yourself in competition with a man who wants to love you. While competition can be fun, if you are looking for a man to love and cherish you, competing with him is not a good idea, unless you like skirmishing more than love. Instead of "being something," something that you may think is worth loving, whether it is smart, beautiful, good, capable, hard working, right, a certain type of person, or whatever, be who you naturally are. That way you can attract the man that's right for you. If Saturn can't learn to let you be who you naturally are, a couple things will happen. First, Saturn may work you down to the bone as you try to be something that you're not, and when that doesn't make you feel any better about yourself, Saturn will try to make you feel better by becoming critical of others. Both of those things are not going to serve your love life well - over working yourself will not allow for the time you need for a quality relationship and it will also make it so much harder for a man to love and cherish you if you are busy all the time. Becoming critical will not make life with a man any easier, so before all that happens, take the time to just be. Just being will put you in a place where a man can love and cherish you, just being will solve most of your relationship concerns.

Saturn in this position can also cause you to reject love when it is given, due to not feeling worthy of love. With this Saturn position it's important to learn to accept yourself as you are and to realize that the right man will love you for who you are as well. Don't let Saturn get you down. Keep yourself open to love - give a guy who tries a chance, or give your man a chance to treat you right if you have one. Sometimes men can be a little slow. That doesn't mean they don't want you, there could be many reasons why they are taking their time. So just take care of yourself, and don't try to prove yourself. Just have faith that the right man for you will come into your life when the time is right. To speed up that time take care of yourself, do the things that make you happy, and be open to love when it comes.

 Strong-minded and active Mars is joining the Moon in your horoscope. This combination will give you a lot of energy to act upon your ideas. Do what you think is right and take care of things that need taking care of. This also happens to be a combination that will help you financially. It won't, however, help you in your love life for the simple reason that Mars is a very independent planet that likes to follow his own ideas - ideas that he will no doubt be successful with. In relationships, this position of Mars will make it harder for your Moon to be receptive to the love and cherishing that your man has to give you. It will be harder to be receptive for two reasons:

The first reason is that Mars will keep you so busy doing things that your man will have less opportunity to give to you and do for you. This combination also makes you quick minded - quick to see what needs to be done, usually quicker to see these things than your man. So that puts you right where Mars likes you to be - in the driver's seat where you can efficiently take care of business. And since Mars is doing all that, there's less of that for your man to do so he won't get as much opportunity to do things for you and give to you, which reduces the bond he has with you. A man bonds most powerfully to a woman when he invests his time, energy, thoughts and money in her. Your independence also reduces the bonding and cherishing you could have with a man, because your non-martial feminine side will bond more deeply and feel more loved when your man is actively planning, cherishing and doing for you. But Mars will interfere with his ability to do so, since you'll always "beat him to it." This is just how Mars likes it, because he likes for you to keep your feeling of independence. But it's not how the Moon likes things to be. Your Moon still wants you to be loved, cherished and bonded to a force that you respect. In love, therefore, try to let go of all that Mars energy which makes you a dynamic success in other areas of life, but which will only keep you unfulfilled in your relationship and instead try to adopt a more receptive and passive attitude and give your man the time he needs to do the right thing for you.

The second reason that Mars makes it harder to be receptive is that Mars is strong-minded and so expects things to be done in accordance with his ideas, and he's not really the type of planet to bounce ideas around in a diplomatic manner and arrive at conclusions that make everyone feel good. Mars is designed that way because his main function is to help us deal with dangerous situations where we have to act immediately, Mars just doesn't have time in his makeup for discussions and sharing. But discussions and sharing are just what a relationship needs. In situations of a serious crisis, your Mars is going to take over and make you do what needs to be done. While this can make your man feel robbed of his power, in those intense situations, that's just how it is going to be. The rest of the time, though, (which is hopefully most of the time because you don't want crisis situations to be your daily life) put Mars to sleep and enjoy the sharing and discussions, love and cherishing that a good relationship has to offer.

"Is your heart more open or more closed to love?"

Your heart is more open than it is closed. That's wonderful, for it will allow you to really know what you are feeling and so you'll be very capable of choosing what happens in your love life and with whom - that alone can save you a world of problems in your love life. Your open-heartedness also helps you to be happy no matter what happens to you while giving you the ability to listen to your women's intuition and to trust your feelings.

Your open heart will also be the thing that your man will fall in love with the most. Your graceful receptivity, capacity for happiness and appreciation of life will be what brings out his most cherishing and loving qualities.

"Are you more personable or harder to get to know?"

You have a good balance of toughness and grace. This will make it easy for you to hang out with most men and have male friends. You can be one of the guys if you want to, or you can attract the one guy you want to you. Men won't find you the easiest to approach, but with just a little encouragement, you'll be very approachable to the right man.

"In Conclusion: Your heart is open and the ease of knowing you is average."

Your heart is open so you will be able to have a fantastic relationship. It may, however, take a little while for the right man to get to know you as you really are, but as he gets to know you, he will likely fall more and more in love with you. If you want to speed up the process, try not to be shy, try to relax and be who you naturally are - he is going to like the natural you, so there's no need to cover anything up.

"Next Step, Compatibility"

After Capacity, Compatibility becomes important. Whether a person has a high or low Capacity for relationship, it's best for them to have good Compatibility as well. For the person with high Capacity, a good Compatibility makes the relationship effortless and allows for a deeper degree of sharing and greater productivity. For the person with low Capacity, a relationship with good Compatibility creates an environment where they can effectively learn to relate in a more capable manner and bring out their best possible behavior - the going will still be tough, but they will improve and eventually they can have a good relationship with a compatible partner if they hang in there.

On the other hand, venturing into a relationship with poor Compatibility is bound to be unrewarding and frustrating. For the person with high Capacity, a poor Compatibility relationship will do its best to frustrate his or her talents, reduce their potential productivity as a partner and bring out their worst possible behavior. In the end they are likely to decide the relationship is just not worth the effort. For the person with low Capacity, a poor Compatibility relationship will make life impossible and be so dramatic as to cause everything in life to suffer. So after understanding and working with your Capacity, find a relationship with acceptable - doesn't have to be perfect - but acceptable Compatibility, and you will have a great relationship.

To discover your Compatibility, go here:

<http://www.vaultoftheheavens.com/Relationship-Reports.asp>

~ ~ ~ ~ ~